Your Impact

The butterfly garden, a focal point of our community courtyard, serves as a peaceful sanctuary, designed to inspire hope and healing. At the center of the garden, a unique pattern of paver stones is thoughtfully arranged to form the delicate wings of a butterfly, symbolizing transformation, resilience, and new beginnings.

The garden itself is planted with a carefully curated selection of native plants, chosen to attract a variety of butterfly species. These vibrant, pollinator-friendly plants, such as milkweed, coneflowers, and lantana, provide both nourishment and habitat for local butterflies and other beneficial insects. Their colorful blooms and sweet scents create a dynamic and ever-changing environment, full of life and energy, offering a gentle reminder of nature's cycles of growth and renewal.

As visitors walk through the garden or take a seat, they are enveloped by a sense of peace and connection to the natural world. The fluttering of butterflies among the flowers serves as a powerful symbol of hope, reminding those facing cancer, as well as those grieving the loss of a loved one, that transformation and healing are possible. The garden fosters a quiet, reflective space for visitors to honor their loved ones, find moments of calm, and reconnect with the beauty and strength of life.

Overall, the butterfly garden is more than just a space of natural beauty—it is a living tribute to hope, resilience, and the ongoing process of healing. Whether facing cancer or grieving a loss, the garden offers a place to find peace, healing, and the quiet strength to move forward.
